

Maintaining ownership continuity for your organization

Organizations can have more than one organization owner to avoid lapses in ownership.

About maintaining ownership continuity for your organization

If an organization only has one owner, the organization's projects can become inaccessible if the owner is unreachable. To ensure that no one will lose access to a project, we recommend that at least two people within each organization have the owner role.

Organization owners have full administrative access to the organization. For more information, see Roles in an organization.

> \[!NOTE]

> As an organization owner, you can change the role of other organization members and owners. You can't change your own role.

If your organization is owned by an enterprise account, any enterprise owner can make themselves an owner of your organization. For more information, see Managing your role in an organization owned by your enterprise.

Appointing an organization owner
